OUR MISSION

Hathaway Brown is a dynamic and compassionate community dedicated to excellence in the education of girls. For us, educational excellence includes, but reaches well beyond, superb preparation for college. The true mission of the school, as reflected in our motto, “Non Scholae Sed Vitae Discimus,” is preparation for life. We strive to foster in the minds of our students an abiding passion for learning and in their hearts a constant devotion to strong character and public service.

At this moment in history, there is great need for women of vision and courage who are empowered for leadership in a multicultural and globalized society. We seek to answer that need by inspiring our students to achieve their utmost potential, and to rise boldly to the challenges of our times.

While transforming the lives of the girls in our care is our primary calling, Hathaway Brown embraces broader aspirations as well: to help shape a future of unbounded possibility for women; to stand among the country’s leading schools in educational innovation; and to be such a force for the common good beyond our campus that we are respected as a civic treasure.

Historically Modern.

Hathaway Brown School has devoted vast resources to create the ideal academic and social environment for the development of young women for more than 140 years.

1886

The school was named for beloved headmistress Anne Hathaway Brown, who adopted the motto that continues to guide our work: Non Scholae Sed Vitae Discimus—We Learn Not for School, But for Life. She also chose the school colors of brown and gold to signify that HB is an institution rooted in the earth, but reaching for the sun.

2016

Dr. Mary Frances “Fran” Bisselle joined a powerful succession of HB leaders, installed as the 14th head of school.

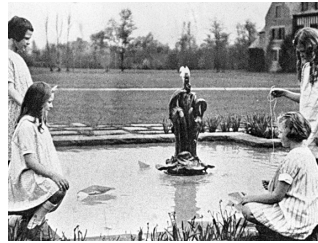

1876

Hathaway Brown is a school that was founded by its own students, when five determined young women marched up the steps of the all-boys Brooks Military Academy to petition the headmaster to enroll them as well. What began as “afternoon classes for young ladies” grew into one of the nation’s premier independent schools dedicated to women’s education and empowerment. While the Brooks Military Academy closed its doors in 1891, HB still proudly stands, welcoming girls of strong character and academic promise throughout Northeast Ohio.

1927

HB moved to a picturesque 16-acre plot of land in Shaker Heights, the city it continues to call home.

It's that feeling of coming home.

HB students hail from nearly 90 different communities in Northeast Ohio—from Akron to Westlake and everywhere in between. Once they get here, they can't imagine being anyplace else.

Maggie, freshman

She rises boldly to the challenges of her times.

A Hathaway Brown education prepares young women to be the visionaries, the difference makers, and the leaders who will change the world. All of our co-curricular and unique special programming is designed to do just that. And our signature Institute for 21st Century Education represents a complete reimagination of the school experience.

Hathaway Brown is a school for girls, and so much more.

It's a school for scientists, writers, artists, and budding entrepreneurs. It's a training ground for athletes, dancers, musicians, and actresses. It's a place where young people are empowered to ask questions, challenge conventions, and explore opportunities.

And everything we do is guided by our motto: Non Scholae Sed Vitae Discimus—We Learn Not for School, But for Life.

Since 1876, HB has given students the tools they need to confidently embrace all the possibilities that exist for them beyond our halls. The faculty's dedication to hands-on experiential learning at all levels can be observed every day in the classrooms, libraries, science labs, theatres, dance studios, and art rooms, as well as on the athletic fields.

In addition to the superior academic preparation they receive, at every turn HB students are inspired to become the best people they can be. We encourage girls of all ages and boys in our Early Childhood program to take chances, stretch their minds, work together, and pick themselves up and start over when they need to.

The results of this philosophical approach are both astounding and humbling. Through the years, we've amassed more than our fair share of awards and accolades in every discipline you can imagine. Students continually perform with notable distinction on high-level tests and in the rate at which they're accepted to their first-choice, top-tier colleges and universities.

But no matter how well they fare by these measures, all of our students are able to apply what they've learned in the classroom to their lives. They know how to test theories, advocate for themselves, find beauty in overlooked places, implement creative solutions, and lend a hand where it's needed.

Wherever they go from here, HB graduates bring strong character, unparalleled intelligence, unbridled enthusiasm, and an unquenchable thirst for knowledge along with them. We hate to see them go, but we know it wouldn't be fair to keep them all for ourselves.

// OUR PRIMARY SCHOOL GRADES K-4

Learning to be a kind and considerate person is valued in the Primary School. We spend time each day talking about the “3 Rs”—respect, responsibility, and resilience. Our girls show high regard for themselves and others by listening to each other, working peacefully for the common good, and treating each other as they would like to be treated. At a girls’ school, an emphasis on positive female role models fosters an environment in which each student’s self-esteem and confidence in her own potential for success take center stage.

As girls develop autonomy and begin to spread their wings, they are challenged more in a variety of ways. At HB, students are supported by faculty members who are experts in adolescence. Choices for students to design their own learning are more prevalent at this stage, and a number of academic and extracurricular initiatives prepare girls for the transition to high school. There is a sense of joy and optimism permeating the Middle School experience, as students learn how to succeed in Upper School and beyond.

Yesterday's educational designs simply are not enough.

Hathaway Brown gives girls in grades K through 12 the chance to unleash their creativity, stretch their minds, try new things, and get big things done in a world that doesn't operate by the rules of a classroom syllabus.

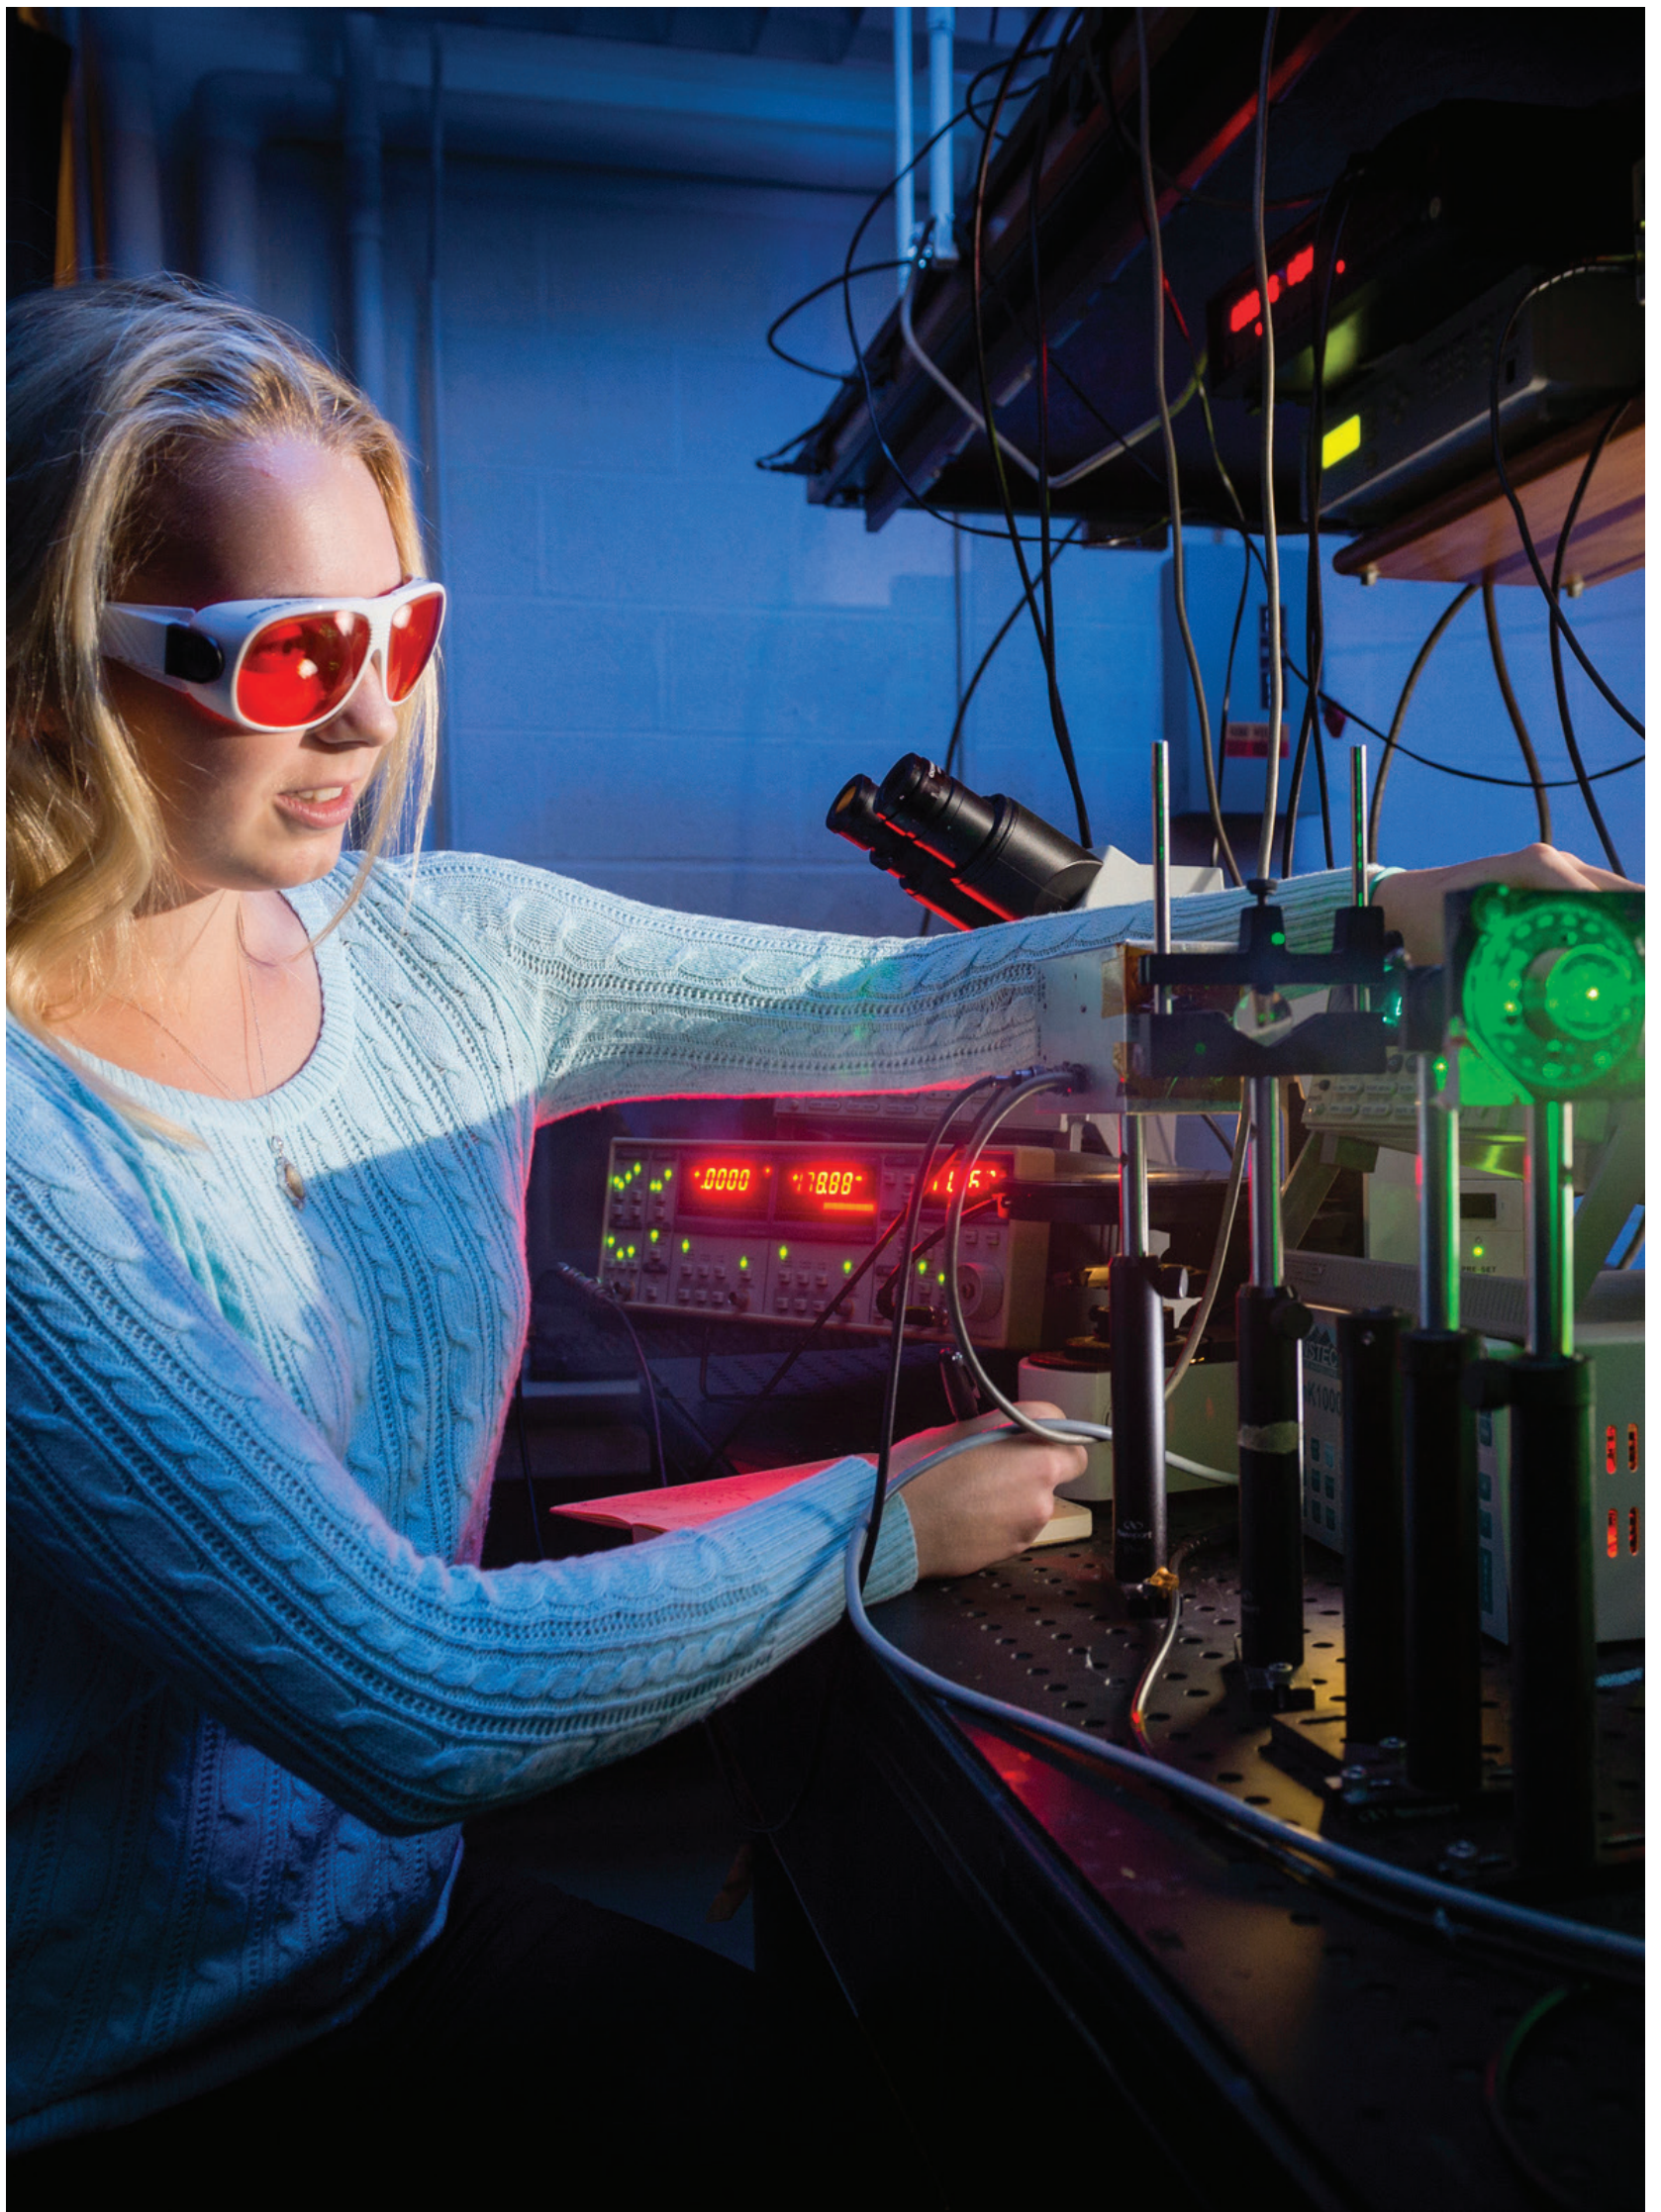

HB's Institute for 21st Century Education.

At its most basic level, the Institute is an assortment of programs that students can join if they choose. We call the programs “Centers,” and each one is related to a discipline that students explore in their core classes. Each Center helps students and teachers engage with the world’s promises and problems.

Centers Include:

“The HB model of education and the school culture create a very specific kind of educational experience that I believe provides girls with the traits that are most highly correlated with success.”

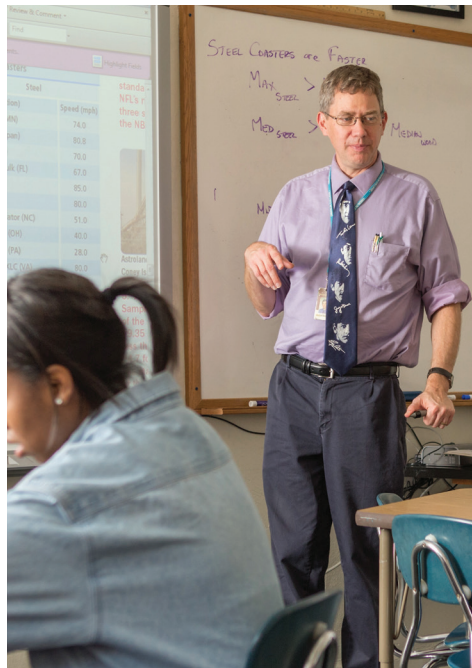

// PSYCHOLOGIST CATHERINE STEINER-ADAIR

Our experts in action.

We offer a fusion of outstanding academic and experiential learning opportunities delivered by expert teachers who are continuously expanding their own knowledge base as they connect students with the community at large in a variety of ways.

In three different centuries, HB's signature lamp of learning has been fueled by the bright, impassioned teachers and school personnel who have nurtured and emboldened generations of students, proudly bearing the responsibility of lighting the way. These 220 vibrant educators joyfully contribute to a shared enterprise—some imparting wisdom from the front of the classroom and others teaching lessons simple and profound by way of their hard work and example. More than half of our teachers hold graduate degrees, and many also are HB alumnae and school parents. HB has been listed as a Top Workplace in Northeast Ohio for the last five years running, and 100 percent of faculty and staff demonstrate their support for the school by contributing to the Annual Fund.

A sisterhood that's forever.

Hathaway Brown alumnae include more than 3,800 women who live in all 50 states and 23 foreign countries. Ranging in age from 17 to 102 years old, they are a community of civically engaged women who hold positions in every type of professional industry there is. Many were the first women to complete particular college degree programs or to rise to executive-level positions in their respective firms.

HB gives girls the tools to be women who lead.

At Hathaway Brown, we know girls. We provide them with an outstanding academic experience both in and out of the classroom every day. We also know that their lives are complex and the demands on them are high. We make sure that we arm them with more than exceptional college preparedness. Our deep dive into the social and emotional needs of our students at every age contributes to HB's long-standing practice of teaching students to understand themselves and others so they can successfully navigate the world and cultivate their best lives.

Representation matters.

// 100% COLLEGE MATRICULATION.

Our team of college counseling experts works closely with our girls, their families, and colleges and universities to make great connections.

At a girls' school, every leadership position is held by a girl. Every person who raises a hand in the classroom is a girl. All of the athletes and team captains are girls. These girls grow up believing that they can do anything because at a girls' school, they see other girls achieving their goals every day.

HB is committed to building a diverse, equitable, and inclusive learning community through our admission policies, hiring practices, professional development, curricular and extracurricular programming, and school culture.

The representation and full engagement of the diverse points of view of individuals with varied life experiences is a source of strength and wisdom that enriches the learning environment and fuels innovation and growth, particularly as students are prepared for lives of strong character, public service, and leadership.
