

What

Would

You

In his new book, which took two decades to complete, history professor Omer Bartov asks why, despite living as neighbors for hundreds of years, Ukrainians and Poles helped Germans slaughter some 10,000 Jews in a small Eastern European town during World War II. The answer—in this and in other genocides since—is more complicated than you might think. By Julia M. Klein

ILLUSTRATION BY GÉRARD DuBOIS

Do?

